

A Study on the Wage's Problem during the Period When Labor Disputes

*Yen-Liang Chen

Abstract

For the past session, which ended 21, Jan. 2004, there were over 100 bills inclusive the Amendment of the Settlement of Labor Disputes Law waiting to be taken off the legislative agenda. But only the number of 57 bills not inclusive the Amendment of the Settlement of Labor Disputes Law approved by the legislators during the past session.

The wage's problem during the period when labor disputes is real difficult to find a fair solution. The Article 52 of the draft amendment of the Settlement of Labor Disputes Law is one of the way to solute this problem but not an only way. This Study tries to analyze The Article 52 of the draft amendment of the Settlement of Labor Disputes Law.

This Study first aims to introduce and analyze the German solution of the wage's problem during the period when labor disputes for its original thought, principal goal and major content. Then this Study will compare the German system with the Taiwan's system. In the end, this Study is going to point out, that Taiwan should fine its own way for its next generation the wage's system during the period when labor disputes.

* Assistant Professor of Law, Institute of Financial and Economic Law, National Dong Hwa University.

Keyword: Wage, Labor, Settlement, Labor Disputes Law, legislative, German labor Law, Salary, Worker, Employer, Risk